

The Department of Mechanical Engineering Presents

Alexis Smith

Coordinator of the Graduate Writing Center

Title: The Basics of STEM Manuscript Writing

Abstract: Interested in getting a journal article published? While some journals have their own unique format, there are key components all journal articles will contain. Come learn more about these key components to begin your writing process!

About the Speaker: Alexis Smith is the Coordinator of the Graduate Writing Center. She has over six years of experience supporting graduate students in writing center contexts, first as a peer tutor and then as an administrator. After completing her BA in English and Anthropology at West Virginia University, Alexis went on to complete an MA in Applied Linguistics/TESOL at the University of Alabama. In addition to tutoring and teaching second language writing courses at UA, she also spent a year teaching English composition at Sias International University in Xinzheng, Henan, China. Most recently, Alexis worked with graduate students and multilingual writers at the Texas A&M University Writing Center. In her spare time, Alexis enjoys running, reading, and watching horror movies.

ZOOM
98733315827

THURSDAY, JANUARY, 13, 2022
11:00AM-11:50AM